

Crypto Affiliate Program

Crypto affiliate programs are also becoming increasingly popular across the globe. It's already a staple in the passive income space in the US.

The definition of affiliate marketing is as follows:

In affiliate marketing, affiliates advertise the products and services of other companies and receive a commission for them!

The commission is made up as follows:

One-time commission: There is a one-time bonus for the referrer and usually also for the referee

In addition, there is often an ongoing commission in the crypto sector. For example, some crypto exchanges give you lifetime commissions on transaction fees from the customers you refer.

The commission range on the transaction fees can be between 5 and 45%.

In the crypto space, this can be very lucrative. However, you must always be careful not to advertise scam programs. This can be very dangerous in the crypto area.